Curriculum Implementation 2024-25

Primary

LCA Strand	Humanities
Subject	RE

What are the key concepts taught?	Religious Education provides children with challenging questions about meaning and purpose in life, beliefs about God, issues of right and wrong and what it means to be human. Children also learn not only about , but also from religions and worldviews in local, national as well as in a global context. This enables them to explore and consider different answers to these questions. They learn to develop and express their own beliefs, but also to agree or disagree respectfully. RE equips pupils with knowledge and understanding of a range of religions and worldviews, enabling them to develop their ideas, values and personal identities.

How do we encourage pupils to see the links between different units and concepts?	The children begin their learning by considering their own beliefs, alongside the beliefs of those around them, as well as being introduced to a range of faiths and significant individuals within the Kapow curriculum. In Key Stage 2, the Opening Worlds curriculum continues to ensure clear, sequenced links throughout a child's journey from Year 3 – Year 6. Each unit is broad and balanced and builds upon previous learning and knowledge; this is cumulative, ensuring that children do not lose previous knowledge when a new topic begins, but instead use this to inform new learning.
What are the planned opportunities for adaptive teaching, including for SEND, the more and able and disadvantaged pupils?	All lessons are differentiated accordingly, ensuring that all children can access the lessons, at their current ability level. Children who require additional scaffolding are given this, and those who require additional challenge, are given reduced scaffolding or additional questions to further stretch their understanding of the topic. Children are given access to key vocabulary from the beginning of the topic, but this is often duplicated for the task at hand, to ensure children with writing (more specifically spelling) difficulties are not disadvantaged and can access the tasks.
What are the planned opportunities for retrieval and reflection by pupils?	In each lesson, children begin by reviewing learning from the previous lesson and often find links to other topics, either in other subjects or other religious units. Learning objectives are given to each child for each lesson, with the final task of each lesson enabling the child to reflect on their progress towards achieving that learning objective. Synoptic tasks are available to teachers to use where appropriate.
What are the opportunities for feed-forward by the teacher post-assessment outcomes?	Despite there being no formal assessment in religious education, at the end of each lesson, each child's book is marked with specific targets or next step for future lessons, enabling them to see which skills they must focus on as they continue through the unit and into the next.
What are the planned opportunities for developing Reading?	Within each unit, and each lesson, there is an opportunity for the children to revisit and review previous teaching and learning, through the use of the Opening Worlds topic textbooks; each lesson is accompanied by a chapter, which provides opportunities for short bursts of reading in each lesson.
What are the planned opportunities for developing literacy, numeracy, oracy and SMSC?	Literacy: Correct spelling of topic-specific terminology and vocabulary is given to and taught to pupils throughout the lessons. Numeracy: Links can be made to numeracy through the introduction of key dates in each faith as well as through recognition of the main festivals celebrated throughout the year.

Oracy: Children are given a myriad of opportunities to discuss their personal beliefs, as well as share their views on a range of information gained during lessons.

SMSC: Links are made to culture throughout the RE curriculum. Each year group learns about and from a range of religions, with the children encouraged to speak about their faiths; religious education enables children to develop their spirituality and be reflective too.
